SPELLING CONTEST EXCITES INTEREST

Keen Interest And Concern Being Manifest All Over Knox County

Friday afternoon, April 14, will see held in the 22 townships of Knox county spelling contests at which will be chosen the representatives of the 30 school districts who will compete at the county contest to be held in Mt. Vernon on Saturday, April 22.

At the school sessions held last Friday the individual schools held contests at which their best spellers were chosen to represent them at the township contest this coming Friday. This week has been an evidence of a stimulation of interest and concern in the coming competition, both upon the part of teachers and contestants. All manner of most questions have been brought before Superintendent Marriott for his determination. This interest is keener and sharper, it is said, than it has been previous to any other contest of like description held in the county.

A banner bearing a suitable inscription will be presented to the school whose representative is declared the champion speller. Movements are being started in some of the townships to reward suitably the best spellers in these townships.

The spelling contest of 1921 was won by John McMillen, of the Knott Oak school, Berlin township. It was won in 1920 by a Fredericktown grammar grade girl.

No selection has yet been made of the person who will pronounce the words. This function was performed in 1921 by County Superintendent Marriott and in 1920 by Supt. P. C. Zemer of Mt. Vernon.

In the district contest the spelling is from a list of 50 words chosen by the county superintendent. In the event there is no selection from the first list of 50, there will be given a second list of 30 words, and a third list of 25 words. Then, in the event there still is no selection the teachers may submit still other lists until a selection is made.

The winner in the county contest is to be determined by pronouncing a list of 50 words taken from the spelling book in general use in Knox county. This contest is written and not oral. In the case of no decision after giving the first list of 50 words other lists shall be given until there is a decision.

It is hoped to have all those interested in wool growing in that part of the county will attend this meeting.

LARGER QUARTERS FOR FARM BUREAU

Two Rooms Added To Suite Made Necessary By Increase Of Business

The suite of rooms in the Knox Savings bank building, occupied by the Knox county Farm Bureau office, is being expanded by the addition of two more rooms. This enlargement has been brought about and made necessary by the enlargement of the volume of business done by the Farm Bureau.

The Farm Bureau has taken over and is adding to its suite the rooms formerly occupied by the brokerage office of George Israel, who has removed into a suit looking out upon West High street. Room No. 1 formerly the reception room of Mr. Israel's office will be occupied as the office of County Superintendent of Schools J. C. Marriott. This is entered from the hallway at the head of the stairs leading up from the street level.

The room formerly occupied jointly by County Agent S. L. Anderson and County Superintendent J. C. Marriott, facing upon the Public Square and used as a reception room by all persons having business either with the County Agent or County School Superintendent, will continue to be used as a reception room and office for the Farm Bureau. Two other rooms in the rear, along the west side of the hallway, will be used to accommodate the clerical force and to receive the supplies and literature coming to the bureau.

Doors permit intercommunication between the offices of the County Agent and County School Superintendent without going through the hallway.

New furniture, desks and tables, have been received and are being supplied in the Farm Bureau office. The process of rearrangement and transformation is not yet wholly complete but this stage is expected to be reached before the end of the week. When finished and the workers and the public have become acquainted with the new arrangement wonder will be expressed that they were able to endure the old conditions as long as they did.

BOOZE CASES ARE BEFORE JUDGE DUKE

Case Against Greer Is Dismissed; Hess Is Found Guilty; Sent To Jail

Cloyce Hess and Kenneth Greer, charged with possessing intoxicating liquors, were arraigned before Judge Duke in the probate court of Knox county late Wednesday afternoon.

Greer, who is 19 years of age and is said to have the mind of a child, entered a plea of nolle prosequi and upon request of Prosecutor Ashbaugh the charge against Greer was withdrawn and the case dismissed by Judge Duke.

Hess was found guilty and was sent back to the Knox county jail by Judge Duke to await sentence. Judge Duke announced that Hess would be sentenced sometime Thursday.

Hess and Greer were arrested Monday by Knox county officers after a raid conducted on a tent on the Hess farm in Jefferson township, Knox county. Hess' home is said to be in Columbus and he is Greer's cousin, officials state.
